

ILA Regional Conference
Braga 2019

“The contribution of the case-law
of international courts and tribunals
to the development of international law”

University of Minho – School of Law
19-20 September

Introduction

International courts and tribunals have, without question, with their case-law, contributed to the development of international law. This contribution can be assessed in terms of methodology of international law, the development of procedural rules, the impact of specialised courts in specialised fields of international law (such as the Law of the Sea or the Investment Law) or the impact of certain particular recent cases.

The Portuguese branch of the International Law Association will organise in September 2019 a regional conference addressing these issues. The event will include as speakers well-known judges, members of the United Nations International Law Commission and scholars, several of which from Portuguese-speaking countries and around the world. Furthermore, it will give young researchers the opportunity to present their papers.

The proceedings of the conference will be object of publication in a book.
